DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Katoh et al. US # 6,097,168.

With respect to above claims, Katoh et al. disclose a position control apparatus provided with numerical control (NC) program. Wherein, in Fig. 1 and 8 Katoh et al. show:

- A numerical control program analysis and processing/command distribution unit 3, provided with NC program input. Wherein, NC program analysis and processing/command unit analyzes (decodes) and processes the NC program which programs the cutter location data of the tool for machining the workpiece by a predetermined language, converts the cutter location data to position commands for movement in the control axes and distributes these to the control axes. The position commands to the control axes are output as amounts of movement per predetermined time and are given as amounts of pulses;
- The NC program is prepared by a CAD system and is downloaded through a predetermined storage medium or communication means;

Art Unit: 2837

- Servo motors 18-20, having X-, Y-, Z- axis;
- Rotational position detectors 18a, 19a, 20a;
- Position compensation units 4, 5, 6 that output the compensation amounts for correcting the position commands via adders 8, 9, 10 when detecting a reversal of the input position command, (see column 6, lines 9-32);
- Axial compensation amount at a plurality of points can be calculated by linear interpolation. The backlash compensation amounts and other axial compensation amounts to the corresponding adders 8-10 are cumulatively added to the past backlash compensation amount to correct the absolute positions of the different axial servomotors 18-20 and to prevent deviations in the absolute positions of the different servomotors 18-20, after the predetermined process has been completed, (see Fig. 10 and column 13, lines 49-67, column 14, lines 1-32).

With respect to claim 1-8, it is the examiner position that, claimed NC system comprising an outside analyzing unit is a design choice. The binary format prepared in advance by the feedforwarding unit is inherent to the above teaching.
